BANDBIO

long version

Triple-X: Folk with Power, Pulse and Personality

Triple-X is a Belgian balfolk band known for its powerful grooves, danceable melodies and infectious stage energy. Since their formation in 2006, they've become a fixture on the European folk scene, with performances at festivals like Dranouter, Boombalfestival and the renowned Andanças in Portugal.

What makes Triple-X stand out is their blend of technical virtuosity and sheer musical force. Their repertoire offers a vibrant mix of original compositions and reimagined traditional tunes, always delivered with irresistible drive. From thundering jigs to whispering mazurkas – every show is a treat for both ears and feet.

The band consists of five seasoned musicians: Bert Leemans (chromatic accordion), Björn Van Hove (violin), Stéphane Hardy (bombarde and saxophone), Jeroen Geerinck (guitar) and Ludo Stichelmeyer (percussion). Together, they create a rich, dynamic sound – both raw and refined – that resonates with dancers and listeners alike.

Triple-X has regularly collaborated with guest musicians such as Soetkin Collier, Philip Masure, Philippe Thuriot and Bart Maris. In 2010, they released their debut album Wodka Vaseline, which was met with critical acclaim and has since become a benchmark in the balfolk genre. Their music transcends borders and styles, appealing just as much to dedicated folk enthusiasts as to curious festivalgoers. Whether you're here to dance, to listen, or simply to be swept away – Triple-X won't leave you untouched.

short version

Triple-X delivers folk with a punch.

What started as a spontaneous idea at a Dutch festival quickly evolved into one of Belgium's most exciting balfolk acts. Triple-X fuses driving grooves with a powerful, energetic sound that blends compelling traditionals and original tunes.

Known for their infectious energy and musical variety, they've played countless festivals across Belgium and beyond. The band features Bert Leemans (accordion), Björn Van Hove (violin), Stéphane Hardy (bombarde/sax), Jeroen Geerinck (guitar), and Ludo Stichelmeyer (percussion). Together, they create a one-of-a-kind live experience.

Their album Wodka Vaseline firmly established their place in the Belgian folk scene and proves that Triple-X is as captivating as it is skilled.